Kansas Turnpike Authority warning drivers of text messaging-based scam

The picture of the text message, which includes a photo of the DriveKS logo, claims that the recipient has an unpaid toll, and that payment must be issued before an additional $35 fee is added on. The text also has a link to pay the balance. However, the KTA says the link is a scam, and is reminding drivers to not click on the link or respond to it in any way. In a statement, the KTA says they do not send unsolicited text messages, does not charge fees like those mentioned in the text, or send text messages for toll payment.

Red flags on a first date:

They ask for your PIN during a first date to "verify who you are". Just as you'd steer clear of that question on a date, be cautious with similar requests via email, phone, or text. Trust your gut and learn to spot the scams:
